JOHN NEVILL.

Pittsburgh, December 28. 1795.

Blacksmiths and other

Tradesmen are much wanted at Elizabeth Town, on the Monongahela, where good workmen will find constant employment, exclusive of the country custom. It is needless to mention the advantages that must arise to the Smith's business (and in all tradesmen in general) from a town so fast improving, Boat-building carried on extensively, and a constant succession of travellers, the same must be obvious to a considerate mind; but independent of these advantages, the proprietor pledges himself to give especial encouragement to the first that sets up here, and prosecutes said business with spirit, which on application, will be made known.

SADLERS and SHOEMAKERS, are also much wanted, and will meet with similar encouragement, and may be supplied with leather at the Tanyard at this place.

S. BAYARD, Proprietor.

December 29, 1795.

FOR SALE,

AN excellent Mill-seat, with a race ready dug, on Street's run, adjoining John Small's place, three-quarters of a mile from the Monongahela river, and six miles from Pittsburgh. Twenty five acres of land will be sold with this seat. The convenience to the river, and in a fertile part of the country, is, no doubt, an object of consequence to any person who may incline to build a mill. The seat is equal to any in the county, and plenty of water at almost any season of the year. For further particulars apply to the subscriber on the premises.

HUGH GRANT.

Allegheny county, Dec. 30, 1795.

TWENTY DOLLARS REWARD.

RANAWAY from the subscriber living in Pittsburgh, on Friday the 25th instant, Two Apprentice Boys, viz. ISAAC GROVE, and HENRY BEAVER. Grove is by trade a shoemaker, about 18 years of age, 5 feet 7 inches high, well made, light hair tied, had on and took with him two round about jackets with sleeves, one green stripe coating with metal buttons, the other clouded nankeen, and two pair of overalls, one green striped coating, the other plain nankeen, one old grey surtout, which I expect he will wear over the rest, one white fur hat, and a set of shoemakers tools; he also opened his master's trunk, and stole therout his indentures.—BEAVER is a German, speaks broken English, also a shoemaker by trade, had on and took with him a long brown coat, and a green striped round about jacket and overalls, a white fur hat, a black wool ditto, and a set of shoemakers tools. Whoever takes up said apprentices and secures them in any jail so that their master may get them again, shall receive the above reward, and if brought home reasonable charges, paid by CONGRESS.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, December 16.

MR. Madison of the committe to whom was recommitted the address, in answer to the Presidents speech, brought in a report.—This report consisted of a new modification of the clause objected to yesterday—referred, with the other parts of the address, to the committee of the whole house, immediately.

Mr. Muhlenberg in the chair.

The report, with a small amendment proposed by Mr. Giles, was agreed to by the committee and reported to the house—the house took up the same, and without a debate, adopted the address as amended.

Mr. Madison, Mr. Sedgwick, and Mr. Sitgreaves, were appointed a committe to wait on the President of the United States, to know at what time and place it will be agreeable to him to receive the address.

Mr. Harper called up a memorial of P. Hopkins and others, which was presented last session, stating that they had undertaken a survey of the southern states, and praying the assistance of Congress to enable them to compleat the business.

The petition of William Waddy and Joseph Vinton was read and referred to the committee of claims.

Mr. Tracy submitted a resolution relative to the law for receiving subscriptions to the loan of the United States, which law is expiring—laid on the table.

The report of the committee on the [illegible] which have expired or are near expiring read a second time.

Mr. Sitgreaves moved for the appointment of a committee, to report the form of a bankrupt law.

Mr. Goodhue observed, that if the gentleman had been as long in Congress as others, he would have been discouraged from the difficulties which have occurred in the business, from proposing the appointment of another committee.

Mr. Bourne was in favour of a committee he doubted not that if the subject was taken up in season, and properly pursued, the present session would be found sufficient to mature the business.

Mr. Sitgreaves said he was not acquainted with the difficulties which had arisen in the course of the business, as it had been discussed by the several Congresses since the formation of the present government; but he did not suppose the attempt was to be relinquished altogether.

Mr. Giles was in favour of a committee though he expressed very little hope of the business being brought to a conclusion, as he considered that the several committees themselves had never been able to agree on any plan which had been brought forward.

The motion for a committee was agreed to and Messrs Giles, Hillhouse, and Dexter appointed.

THURSDAY, Dec. 16.

The Speaker communicated a letter from the Treasurer of the United States, including his specie accounts, which were ordered to be printed.

Mr. Hampton, from South Carolina, and Mr. Millege, from Georgia, took their seats in the house this day.

A motion by Mr. Smith, (S. C.) laid on the table yesterday; was this day taken up and agreed to, viz. That a committee be appointed to bring in a bill to establish offices for the sale of land in the Western Territory. A committee of five was appointed.

Mr. Sitgreaves presented a petition of sundry citizens of Philadelphia, representing that illegal and undue proceedings had taken place in the election of one of the members of the house from Pennsylvania, particularly referring to John Swanwick Esq. The petition being read, Mr. Swanwick moved that it should be referred to the committee of elections, which motion was agreed to.

The house then, on motion of Mr. Smith, (S. C.) went into a committe of the whole on the President's speech.

The several resolves relative to the different parts of the speech which Mr. Dexter brought forward some days since, were taken up, and with a few alterations agreed to by the committee, also the resolution relative to the naval equipment proposed by Mr. Swanwick. These resolutions were reported to the house, further amended, and adopted.

Committees were appointed on the following objects, viz. The military establishment, the militia, Indian trade, protection of the Indians—further reduction of the public debt, the mint—naval equipment.

FRIDAY, Dec. 18.

A report was made on the subject of the doubtful election of Mr. Richards of Pennsylvania, against the validity of his election, and in favour of a new one. After some conversation, the business was recommitted.

The following resolve was taken up and agreed to: Resolved, that a committee be appointed to enquire and report whether it be necessary to extend the time for receiving on loan the domestic debt of the United States beyond the———of January, 1795, and report by bill or otherwise. A committee of three was then appointed.

It was resolved, that a committee be appointed to consider the propriety of continuing in force an act which extends the terms of limitation of certain acts, relative to an health-office, light houses, beacons, &c. The committee was appointed.

The house proceeded to consider the resolutions reported by the committee of the whole on the state of the mint.

That respecting the mint was now taken upon, it being understood that the Senate had taken up that subject.

That respecting the navy was postponed till Monday.

Also, that relative to fortifications and military stores.

Communications from the war department relative to the military stores for stations and frigates, were read. To be printed.

...nications from the Commissioners ... the sinking fund was received, and ordered to be printed.

A committee of three, for the revision of the penal laws was appointed.

MONDAY, Dec. 21.

A committee of nine were appointed on the subject of the post-office and post roads. The following resolution, laid on the table by Mr. Gallatin, on Friday last, was taken up and adopted.

Resolved, that a standing committee of Ways and Means be appointed, whose duty shall be to examine reports made by the Treasury Department, and all propositions relative to the revenue referred to them by the House, also to enquire into the state of the public debt, revenue, and expenditure, and report from time to time their opinion thereon.

A committee of 15 members was appointed accordingly.

The following are the gentlemen, viz. Messrs. William Smith, Sedgwick, Madison, Irwin, Gallatin, Bourne, Gilman, Murray, Buck, Gilbert, Isaac Smith, Blount, Dayton, and Hillhouse.

TUESDAY, Dec. 22.

A number of petitions were presented and referred.

A petition was presented from Nathaniel Appleton, commissioner of loans for Massachusetts, praying an increase of salary. Referred to a committee of five.

Mr. Sedgwick moved, that this committee be instructed to report whether any, and if any what additional compensation ought to be allowed to the commissioners of loans and their clerks for 1796.

The high price of living was pleaded in favor of the motion. In opposition was objected, that the states can get men to fill the most important offices reputably, for which federal officers in less responsible and safer stations receive. This difference creates invidious distinctions, which might be increased if the motion should prevail. The motion was lost.

A petition was received from the clerks in the office of the Massachusetts commissioner of loans, praying further compensation. Referred to the last named committee.

Mr. Harrison laid the following motion on the table. Ordered that so much of the report of the Secretary of State, of the 13th of January 1790, and of the message of the President of the United States, of the 8th of January last, as relate to weights and measures be referred to a committee to examine and report to the house.

Mr. Venable in behalf of the committee of elections, asked for a power to send for persons papers and records. Granted.

Mr. White of the South Western Territory presented sundry petitions requesting compensation for property taken by the Creeks and Cherokees. Referred to a committee of the whole on the state of the union.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 23.

A petition against the Treaty, signed by a number of the citizens of Virginia, was read and referred to the committee of the whole on the state of the union.

THURSDAY, Dec. 24.

The time of the house was this day almost wholly employed in reading and referring petitions. Both Houses of Congress then adjourned until Monday next.

Yesterday at 12 o'clock the House of Representatives of the United States waited on the President, and presented the following address in answer to his speech to both houses at the opening of the Session:

TO the PRESIDENT of the United States,

SIR,

We the Representatives of the people of the United States, we cannot but participate in the strongest sensibility to every blessing which they enjoy, and cheerfully join with you in profound gratitude to the Author of all good for the numerous and extraordinary blessings which he has conferred on our favored country.

The final and formal termination of the distressing war which has ravaged our North Western Frontier, will be an event which will afford a satisfaction proportioned to the solicitude with which it has long been sought; and in the adjustment of the terms, we perceive the true policy of making them satisfactory to the Indians as well as to the United States, as the best basis of a durable tranquility. The disposition of such of the southern tribes as had also heretofore annoyed our frontier, is another prospect in our situation important to the interest and happiness of the United States, that it is much to be lamented that any clouds should be thrown over it, more especially by excesses on the part of our own citizens.

While our population is advancing with a rapidity which exceeds the most sanguine calculations—while every part of the United States display indications of rapid and various improvement—while we are in the enjoyment of protection and security, by mild and wholesome laws, administered by governments founded on the genuine principles of national liberty, a secure foundation will be laid for accelerating, maturing, and establishing the prosperity of our country, if by friendly and amicable negotiation, all those causes of external discord which heretofore menaced our tranquility, shall be extinguished on terms compatible with our national rights and honour, and with our constitutional and great commercial interests.

Among the various circumstances of our internal situation, none can be viewed with more satisfaction and exultation, than the late scene of disorder and insurrection has been completely restored to the enjoyment of order and repose. Such a triumph of reason and of law, is worthy of the free government under which it happened, and was justly to be hoped from the enlightened and patriotic spirit which pervades and actuates the people of the United States.

In contemplating that spectacle of national happiness which our country exhibits, and of which you, Sir, have been pleased to make an interesting summary, permit us to acknowledge and declare the very great share which your zealous and faithful services have contributed to it, and to express the affectionate attachment which we feel for your character.

The several interesting subjects which you recommend to our consideration, will receive every degree of attention which is due to them: and whilst we feel the obligation of temperance and mutual indulgence in all our discussions, we trust and pray that the result to the happiness and welfare of our country may correspond with the pure affection we bear to it.

THE ANSWER.

GENTLEMEN,

COMING as you do from all parts of the United States, I receive great satisfaction from the concurrence of your testimony in the justness of the interesting summary of our national happiness, which, as the result of my enquiries I presented to your view. The sentiments we have mutually expressed of profound gratitude to the source of these numerous blessings—the Author of all Good—are pledges of our obligations to unite our serious and zealous endeavours, as the instruments of Divine Providence, to preserve and perpetuate them.

Accept, Gentlemen, my thanks for your declaration, that to my agency you ascribe the enjoyment of a great share of these benefits. So far as my services contribute to the happiness of my country, the acknowledgment thereof by my fellow-citizens, and their affectionate attachment, will ever prove an abundant reward.

G. WASHINGTON.

Legislature of Pennsylvania.

FRIDAY, Dec. 18.

Several petitions were presented, and ordered to lie on the table.

A motion which was laid on the table yesterday, that the members' names may be called beginning at the youngest counties, was after some debate withdrawn, to make way for an alphabetical arrangement of the city and counties, which after some debate was likewise withdrawn,

A resolution was laid on the table to permit members to enter their reasons for their votes on the Journals.

SATURDAY, Dec. 19.

The report of the committee on lotteries was read a second time, and the house adopted the report, that it was inexpedient at this time to make any alterations in the laws against lotteries.

The resolution for allowing members to enter their reasons for their votes upon the Journals was called up and debated—the yeas and nays were called—yeas 36, nays 32.

MONDAY, Dec. 21.

Several reports of committees were presented, and ordered to lie on the table.

Sundry petitions were read a second time and referred.

A bill was received from the Senate to authorise the United States to erect fortifications on French creek.

TUESDAY, Dec. 22.

A petition was presented from the citizens of the county of Lycoming, praying that a different place for their county town may be allowed than that fixed upon by the commissioners.

The report of the committee on the application of Mr. Poor, for a lottery to erect an Academy for young ladies, was read a second time, and after considerable debate the house decided against the report.

The committee appointed to consider the propriety of reviving the bankrupt laws made against such revival, which was agreed to.

LONDON, October 25.

A letter from Nantes, dated October 1st says,—"Yesterday an English vessel laden with 400 emigrants disembarked them near Sables. At the moment when they thought themselves conquerors, they were attacked in a sudden by the republicans, and pursued with the bayonet.——Not one escaped."

It has been said in the Convention that a correspondence existed between Basle and Paris, the parties in which entertained no less an object than to put to death the leading patriots, to bring to trial all those who voted for the death of Louis Capet and to punish all those who have exercised any public function!

M. Moneron returned to Dover yesterday morning; the vessel he embarked on board of in the Downs was bound to Havre, but could not reach that port owing to the strong westerly winds.

Yesterday, pursuant to an invitation by hand-bills a considerable number of people assembled in a field near Copenhagen House situate between Islington and Highgate.—Three Tribunes were erected in which citizens Thelwall, Jones, and Binns harangued the mob. The object of the meeting was to sign a petition to Parliament, and a remonstrance to the King.—Fifteen resolutions were then read by the chairman: one of which was, "That the present government of France is entirely to maintain the relations of peace and amity with the King of Great Britain, as with the elector of Hanover,"——Thelwall spoke a considerable time and above all things recommended peaceable but firm endeavours to obtain a reform in the representation. Jones was particularly warm; and in one passage observed that if they did not now obtain redress for their accumulated sufferings, he hoped the the next time they assembled it would be to witness the punishment of a guilty minister. About five o'clock this large mass not less than 50,000 seperated, without accident or disorder.

The magistrates had taken their usual precaution in having a military force in readiness in various parts, and early in the evening, without appearance of mob, or disposition to mobbing, in Westminster, the gates of St. James's Park were shut.

Amendments to the Constitution.

VIRGINIA, HOUSE OF DELEGATES.

Saturday, December 12, 1795.

Resolved, That the Senators representing this state in the Congress of the United States be, and they are hereby instructed, and the Representatives requested, to unite their utmost exertions to obtain in their respective houses the following amendments to the constitution, viz.

1. That no treaty, containing any stipulation upon the subject of the powers vested in the Congress by the eighth section of the first article, shall become the supreme law of the land, until it shall have been approved, in those particulars, by a majority of the house of Representatives; and that the President, before he shall ratify any such treaty, shall submit the same to the House of Representatives.

2. That a tribunal other than the Senate, be instituted for the trial of impeachments.

3. That the Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each state, chosen by the legislature thereof for three years, and each Senator shall have one vote; immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be, into three classes. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the first year; the second class at the expiration of the second year, and of the third class at the expiration of the third year, so that one third may be chosen at the expiration of every year.

4. That no person holding the office of a judge under the United States shall be capable of holding at the same time, any other office or appointment whatever.

Agreed to by the House of Delegates.

(Attest)

JOHN STEWART, Clerk H. D.

FRENCH ARMIES.

A view of their position at the date of our last Accounts.

Victory has these two years, so invariably attended the Republican armies, that the defeat of a small French post, or a mere retrograde movement, executed in order to return with redoubled force, & sweep away by impetuous attack the battalions of the enemy without giving them time to rally, excites as much rejoicing among the friends of despotism as if vast provinces had been conquered, and whole armies cut to pieces; for so very little do the enemies of republicanism hope from the final issue of the present struggle between liberty and despotism, that they consider a momentary respite from approaching destruction as a glorious advantage, and deem it a decisive victory, if chance enables them to preserve a few days longer a narrow spot of ground, the sole remnant of vast provinces.

What we hitherto have heard of the late military operations in Germany, consists chiefly of reports and assertions unsupported by facts. King George announced a victory over the French and his ministers took care not to omit every exaggeration on that head; else the pretended victory would have dwindled to a trifling advantage gained by an open encroachment on the rights of a neutral nation.

In the Convention they seemed not so much convinced of any serious loss, as indignant at the perfidy of those who being entrusted with the direction of the armies had delayed the opening of the campaign, in order to prevent the troops from gaining as many advantages as they probably might have done at an earlier period of the year.

By a concise recapitulation of facts that have occurred during this short campaign, and a few remarks on the topographical situation of the spot where the troops of the belligerent powers were posted, our readers will be able to decide which party has a real claim to victory, and what reasons independent of treachery in the committees of the Convention, have determined the brave Jourdan to evacuate a small part of the country conquered since last September on the east bank of the Rhine.

On the 6th September, the army of Sambre and Meuse effected the passage over the Rhine, took the fortress of Dusseldorf, and pursued from the 8th to the 21st September the flying Austrians, up the river to the gates of Frankfort, a space of about 115 miles. On the 23d September, the Republicans had taken 631 pieces of artillery, all the magazins of the Austrians on the Lower Rhine, 50 towns, a vast number of prisoners, and a territory extending 120 miles from North to South and from 10 to 60 miles from East to West. All this was effected in less than 17 days by the intrepid army under Jourdan.

The country so rapidly conquered by the French was entirely cut off from the territory where the Austrian army had retreated, it being separated by the neutral countries of Hesse, Hirtzfeld, Mark, &c. and for this very reason, it might have been considered as perfectly sheltered, if despots could be relied on to respect any law but that of superior force. Agreeable to treaty between France and Prussia, the contending powers were only allowed to march troops over the neutral country by the road of Frankfort to the next province not included within the line of neutrality. All the other roads leading from the Lower Rhine across the Landgraviate of Hesse and the Prussian possessions in Westphalia, were formerly interdicted to both parties, and the King of Prussia took the engagement to have the line of neutrality respected by the force of arms if necessary.

Clairfayt had effected his retreat by the road of Frankfort to the district of Aschaffenburgh, a country of very small extent and communicating only by a narrow slip of land with the circle of Saubia, occupied by the army of Wurmser.

Jourdan aware of the critical situation of his adversary, formed the plan to force the Austrians out of their last retreat, and oblige them to fall back to Bohemia, leaving the neutral circle of Franconia between themselves and the Republicans. To execute this project Jourdan pushed part of the army through Frankfort beyond the line of neutrality, and while he was pressing on the Pittsburgh, January 7, 1796.

Pittsburgh, January 9.

We hear from Fort Waſhington that General Wayne has left the army on a viſit to Philadelphia, and that General Wilkinſon has taken the command at Greenville.

The number of Inhabitants in the Borough of Pittſburgh, as taken by the Aſſeſſors, during the laſt week, amounts to one thouſand three hundred and fifty five.

By Yeſterday's MAIL

We are informed, that the Proper National Flag ſent to Congreſs, by the Convention will this day be preſented to the Preſident, with whom it will lie to diſpoſe of it agreeable to the intention of the donors.

It was yeſterday ſtrongly reported in town, that the French had fallen in with the Engliſh Newfoundland fleet, and captured many ſail.

Summary of the lateſt news from France extracted from Paris papers to Nov. 5 inclusive.

The council of Elders choſe from a liſt of 50 candidates preſented by the council of 500 the following citizens to form the executive Directory.

LA REVEILLERE LEPAUX 307 votes
REWBEL 240
SIEYES 239
LE TOURNEUR 214
BARRAS 206

SIEYES having declined, CARNOT was elected by a great majority.

The 24 Engliſh Weſt-Indiamen taken by the ſquadron of Rochefort were chiefly ſhips of from 500 to 900 tons, and of an immenſe value.

Another ſquadron commanded by Captain Robin, took 25 Portugueze and 12 Engliſh merchantmen.

The army of Jourdan were buſily occupied with tranſporting on the other ſide of the Rhine all the magazines, warlike ſtores, and cattle they had captured on the eaſt ſide of the river.

The army of Italy was advancing victoriouſly againſt the Auſtrian and Piedmonteſe poſitions beyond the Alps.

The greateſt activity was diſplayed in the ſhip-yards of the Republic, in order to prepare a powerful fleet, which is to act next ſpring, when in all probability the French will have no other enemy to combat but the Engliſh.

In the ſitting of Nov. 1, the adminiſtration of Saintes announced to the Convention, that Barrere had found means to eſcape from his priſon

Menou, Ex-Conſtituent, Ex Baron, and Ex-General of the National Guard of Paris, who was accuſed of being concerned in the plot of the Sections has been acquitted by the Military Commiſſion.

Liſt of the Miniſters appointed under the New French Conſtitution. They are ſubordinate to the Executive Directory.

Truguet is appointed Miniſter of Marine—Gaudin, of Finance—Merlin et Douay, Miniſter of Juſtice, and Charles Lacroix, Miniſter of Foreign Affairs—Dubaret, the defender of Mentz, Miniſter of War, and Benezech, Home Miniſter.

At the date of our laſt accounts from Paris, General Schérer, at the head of the army of the Eaſtern Pyrennees, had arrived at Albenga, and replaced Kellerman in command of the army of Italy. Immediately afterwards Sherer puſhed his left wing beyond Baleſtrino and his right wing took poſſeſſion of Torrano. The Sardo-Auſtrian army, afraid of being hemmed in, abandoned their entrenched camps and retreated precipitately towards Bormida.

On the 6th of October, in the Convention a letter was received from General Jourdan, purporting, that underſtanding from the public papers that liberty was in danger at Paris, he had taken meaſures, to ſend, upon the firſt ſignal, a republican column of his army to cauſe the national repreſentation to be reſpected.

The Houſe of repreſentatives of the Legiſlature of South Carolina have finally agreed to a reſolution againſt the Treaty. Ayes 69, Noes 9.

FROM THE AURORA.

A TRIP TO ST. JAMES's, 1794.

ND me thy trumpet, Fame! thy brazen lungs, hine hundred mouths, and eke thine hundred tongues!
liver swells with vehement desire,
ll such things as scarce will be believ'd!
y, the wonders that have been atchiev'd,
thout the aid of sword or fire,
in a modest, decent, civil way,
r Extraordinay Envoy, Mr. JAY.

Muse, 'midst what acclaims he did set out,
nded down to Whitehall stairs,
thousands, in their Sunday airs,
when he got on shipboard gave a shout;
nighty blast fill'd the OHIO's sails,
homeward all the shouters turn'd their rails, left the ship in charge of Mr. JAY e-girt Britain's coast to make her way.

as an arrow from an Indian's bow,
e ship across the Atlantic shot,
er than ever ship was known to go, d of her destination hit the very spot;
s proud of such immortal honour,
As our great Envoy laid upon her;
to New-York came straightway back to tell
In her charge she had succeeded well.

Muse, let us return to Mr. JAY,
safe to London city found his way;
th ceremonial due then went to greet ville's new Lord, and Billy Pitt likewise, view'd the Envoy Ex with wond'ring eyes,
ond'ring what bro't his Ex to Downey-street;
promis'd soon to shew him to the King, whom he might unfold the tidings he did bring.

time Lord Grenville asks his Ex to dine, honour which his Ex could not decline;
e, cheek by jowl, with Lords he sits in state,
due decorum empty ev'ry plate;
dinner done, the loyal glasses ring
loyal bumpers crown'd to George the King.

Now mount, O Muse, on eagle's wings,
Attend with Mr. JAY the King of Kings.

day was come, the weather wond'rous fair
n with Lord Greenville to St. James's court, Ex the Extra-Envoy did repair,
's errand and himself to make report,
Monarch saw—and turning to the Queen, ook, look, there's JAY, there's JAY, there's JAY, I ween,
rom Congress come to make a bow;
nder if the dog knows how?"
Ex advanc'd, and made a bow by rule,
ich shew'd he had been at a dancing-school;
Monarch then return'd a Monarch's nod, ful, no doubt, as the Olympian God.
hen thus in humble tone of supplication,
d Mr. Jay begin his smooth oration;

Sire, permit a wight, thy subject born,
fellow-subjects suff'rings to impart,
or from their wailings turn thine ear in scorn,
Like Egypt's king of old, of harden'd heart.

not like Moses come, with threats to fright,
Or daunt with spells and charms thy royal breast.
Our unfledg'd Eagle, all too young for flight,
like the peaceful Halcyon, in its nest.

e, like the peaceful Halcyon, wont to glide,
f true the tale that's told of other times,) born on the azure bosom of the tide, rom shore to shore, from cline to distant climes

ut mews and sea-gulls now disturb her rest, nd herns strike her with their tabernuowls;
oracious sharks assault her peaceful nest,
nd warlike sword-fish pierce it full of holes.
Thou, who like Neptune, dost the trident sway,
Alone can'st quell those monsters of the main.
O let thy clemency shine forth we pray,
nd Halcyon days prolong thy glorious reign."

nwhile a gracious ear the monarch lent
Mr. JAY, and eke his compliment, which he condescended such reply
Billy Pitt dictated by the bye.

t to the Queen his Ex did make his leg,
with the King her intercession beg;
Which the Queen return'd two royal dips,
ugh not a word else to'll her royal lips:
n to each Prince and Princess low he bow'd,
demagogue, when he salutes the crowd, s done, the Monarch gave a gracious grin,
l thus familar question did begin:

Well! since your Independence you have got,
re you much happier than before, or not?
Good salaries, and sinecures! Hæ, Mr. JAY!
Or are Republicans too stingy, pray?
Does Mr. Washington, hæ, wear a crown?
No, no, not yet, you'd knock him down."

eat Sir, cries Mr. JAY, we ha'n't as yet, ead among us that a Crown would fit,
No, no, I guess not, instant cry'd the King,
His head, I'm sure's not fit for such a thing;
You're all Republicans, hæ, Mr. JAY!
All Sans-Culottes, no doubt, aye, aye, aye, aye"

which his Extra-Envoy make reply tone so sweet the King could but believe,
Permit me, Sire, your ears to undeceive
That all are Sans Culottes I dare deny,
Nay more I further prove what I advance,
Since I am here, O King, and not in France!"

e Monarch, half-convinc'd, exclaim'd, "Egad!
If you were there, you'd chance to loss your head;

"Ha'n't you among you got the guillotine
"Yes, yes, I'm sure you have,—myself &
"Would soon among you all be lopt off
"As wheat in harvest—and as much in sport.

I'm sure, cries Mr. JAY, in accents sweet,
Confounded by what Majesty had said;
Your sacred heads more precious far than wheat
From scythes, or guillotines have not ght to dread.

"Gadso! I doubt it much upon my life!"
The sputtering monarch quick replied,
"A lowsy taylor (can it be denied!
"Among you kick'd my son that kiss'd his wife."
That fact, cries Mr. JAY, I can't deny.
"No, no, no, that you can't I, I, I, I!"
The Monarch said, "for Neddy swore 'twas true,
"And that the taylor beat him black and blue."*

The blushing Queen here turn'd her head aside
Blushing in part with shame, in part with pride,
Each bashful Princess hung her lovely head,
And seem'd to sympathise with brother Ned.

Now Billy Pitt and Greenville's lord began
To fear the Monarch might betray the man;
For Monarchs can sometimes like parrots talk,
As monkies on two legs like Monarchs walk,
So Greenville pluck'd the Envoy by the sleeve,
And whisper'd it was time to take his leave.
